

Student Preference Manual

Who this is for: Students submitting exam preferences for an upcoming semester – S1 2026-27 (Both EC2 & EC3).

What this cover: Confirming your exam location, uploading eligibility documents (if required), choosing Regular or Make-up for each course, reviewing and submitting, and what to do after submission — both before and after the submission window closes.

Every screenshot below was captured directly from a running instance of the application, not mocked up — see the note at the end of this document for how.

You don't need to decide anything before you begin — the system already knows:

- Whether your exams are Onsite or Online: This is decided automatically from your registered country (and city, for a few countries with more than one exam city). You cannot change this yourself. If you believe it's wrong, contact your program administrator.
- Which courses you are registered for: These are already loaded for you.

All you need is your student login.

2. Getting to your preference page

When you log in, you land on My Upcoming Exams — your starting point for every semester that currently has an active preference window.

My Upcoming Exams — one card per active semester, with status badges, days remaining, and a continue button

If you're an Online student, you'll also see a collapsible "Online Exam Guidelines & Infrastructure

Requirements" panel above your exam cards — open it to check what your device and internet connection need to support before your exam.

My Upcoming Exams for an Online student, with the Online Exam Guidelines panel expanded

If you only have one exam type this semester, the button on your card takes you straight into the wizard — you won't see an extra selection step.

Click Submit Preferences → (or Continue to Courses & Slots → if your location step is already complete) to begin.

3. Step 1 — Confirming your exam mode and location

This step is titled Exam preferences and appears first in the wizard. A breadcrumb across the top (Mode & Location › [Online Documents ›] Courses & Slots › Review & Submit › Change Preference) shows where you are — the Online Documents step only appears in the breadcrumb if you're an Online student.

Exam preferences page for an Onsite student, with the Apply-to-all bar and a location filled in for each exam type

You'll see one card per exam type you're registered for. For each card:

1. Your Exam Mode is shown as a fixed badge — Onsite — you can't change it here.
2. Click into Exam Location and start typing a city name. A matching list of exam cities appears as you type — click the one you want.

If you have more than one exam type and want the same location for all of them, use the Apply location to all exams bar at the top instead of filling in each card separately: search for the city once, then click Apply to all →.

When every card has a location, click Save and continue → at the bottom of the page.

Courses and exam slots page — each course has Regular / Make-up buttons, with an Assign-all option per exam type

For each course, click Regular or Make-up to choose which attempt you're taking that course under. Both dates are shown side by side so you can compare before deciding.

If you want the same choice for every course in a section, use Assign all: Regular or Assign all: Make-up at the top of that section instead of clicking through each course individually.

You cannot pick two courses that clash. If two of your courses fall on the same date and session, the system blocks you from submitting until you move one of them to a different attempt (Regular or Make-up) that doesn't overlap.

If a course only has one available attempt, that option is shown as "— only option" — there's nothing to choose there.

When every course has an attempt assigned, continue to the review step.

Review & Submit page, submitted with the window still open — Submitted and Window Open badges, with Edit links on each section

Check that everything is correct:

- Mode and location for each exam type
- Attempt (Regular / Make-up) and exam date for each course

If something needs fixing, use Edit mode & location → or Edit course assignments → on the relevant section — this takes you back to that step without losing anything else you've already entered.

When everything looks right, submit your preferences. You'll receive a confirmation email listing your exam type(s) and location(s).

7. After you submit — while the window is still open

You don't have to get everything right the first time. As long as the submission window for that semester hasn't closed yet, you can return to your preferences at any time.

From My Upcoming Exams, a semester you've already submitted shows a View or Update Preferences → button instead of the original submit button. This takes you back into the same Review & Submit page, still with working Edit links, so you can update your exam location, where applicable, or course attempts and resubmit.

8. Window has closed — raising a Change Request

Once the Preference Window is closed, the action available to you depends on whether you have already submitted your preferences.

If You Have Already Submitted Preferences

You can view your submitted preferences, but they cannot be edited directly. If changes are required, you can raise a Change Request.

Once a semester's submission window closes, your preferences become read-only — you'll no longer see any Edit links on the Review page, and your card on My Upcoming Exams will show "Submission is closed for this semester" along with a View Submitted Preferences button and a separate Request a change link.

10. Common questions

Why don't I get to choose Onsite or Online? This is decided automatically from your registered country (and, for a handful of countries with more than one exam city, your city). It is not a setting you can change yourself. If you believe your country or city on file is wrong, contact your program administrator — don't submit preferences assuming it will change, since the mode won't update on its own.

I only see a Documents step for some semesters, not others — is that a bug? No. The Documents step only appears for semesters where you're an Online student. If every exam in that semester is Onsite for you, the step is skipped entirely.

I already submitted — can I still make changes? Yes, as long as the submission window for that semester is still open. Use View or Update Preferences → from your exam card. Once the window closes, changes go through a Change Request instead (see Section 8).

Two of my courses want the same slot — what do I do? Assign one of them to the other attempt (Regular or Make-up) so they no longer overlap. The system won't let you submit while a clash exists.

Do I have to upload documents before I can move past that step? No — you can continue to the next step without uploading anything and come back later. But you do need at least one document on file before you can complete your final submission if you're an Online student.

Note on screenshots

Every screenshot in this manual was captured directly from a running instance of the application (not mocked up or copied from an older version), using sample student accounts that exercise each state described: the Hub in both Onsite and Online states, the Location/Mode step for both modes, the Documents step, the Courses & Slots step (including the Regular/Make-up choice), the Review & Submit step in both open-window and closed-window states, and the Change Request form. None of the accounts or data shown belong to a real student.
